Monday, November 5, 2001 -- A man who was blind in one eye regained his sight after unusual treatment in the hyperbaric chamber operated by Rambam Hospital's ophthalmology department.

A few days ago, the man, 54, who immigrated from Russia a decade ago, was unable to see with his left eye. He was diagnosed as having a blood clot that blocked the central artery of the retina.

Binyamin Miller, head of the department in the Haifa ...
